IN-HOUSE TRAINING

Bring teams together with expert faculty for interactive face-to-face sessions

In-house training can be delivered onsite at your company or we can arrange a venue at a location of your choice.

With this option you can combine theoretical content with practical group sessions designed to inspire dialogue and collaboration between teams.

The trainer will be on hand throughout to guide discussions and give direct feedback on company-specific challenges.

All our trainers are rigorously vetted to ensure they can deliver training face-to-face in an engaging way.

In-house training workshops are often the preferred choice if your chosen topic is more complex or if you need to involve key stakeholders in the senior management team.

- Hold at a location of your choice
- Encourage active participation and interaction between departments
- Customize the content to your requirements
- Include interactive case studies and practical exercises tailored to your organization

DIGITAL TRAINING

A flexible and cost-effective way to upskill teams at scale

During the consultation process with our clients we often discover teams working from multiple offices globally face similar challenges and have similar training needs.

Our expertise in online learning enables us to develop programs which bring these teams together, to ensure knowledge is enhanced across a broad base, and to help drive collaboration between people.

We can tailor your digital training to meet specific requirements by producing bespoke live webinars or arranging multiple licenses for our online academies.

- Deliver training no matter the size or location of your teams
- Customize the content and learning platform to your requirements
- Access a comprehensive set of learning materials including quizzes and webinars
- Three simple formats to choose from: webinars, short courses and academies
- Flexible and cost-effective

BLENDED TRAINING

Combine digital and in-house learning elements to meet the needs of different teams

Blended training combines the best of both in-house and digital training, and is the perfect choice when you have a team with a variety of experience levels that need to be brought up to speed quickly.

Mix and match onsite workshop sessions with live webinars or online academy licenses including direct access to our expert faculty.

Blended training programmes offer you the support and flexibility to customize content and study modes to suit the learning needs of your team..

How it could work:

- 1) Start with an introductory webinar to the full team.
- 2) Conduct face-to-face workshops with key stakeholders.
- 3) Review learning objectives and questions on another webinar and support continued development with access to digital learning material.

- Mix and match digital modules with in-house training
- Customize the content and learning materials to your requirements
- Combine convenience with practical application
- Encourage active participation in groups as well as self-study
